Of those who have participated in the amus ments of the past social week it may safely recorded that on the whole they have had what our American consins call "a good time." have to begin the chronicle of events with the Regatta. Now, regattes, as a rule, are mostly interesting only to those who take an active part in them, whether it be as earsmen, judges, umpires, or starters. To be average spectator from the flagship they are not particularly exciting. He or she has but the vaguest notion when a race is coming off, and it frequently happens that all on board the flagship are blissful ignorance of the afforts being made to win some coveted prize until the boats are eithe abreast of the ship and semebody happens to pointout that it looks very like as if " something were going on," or else that a gun denotes that " something must have happened." This year this state of happy ignorance was more noticeable than ever in consequence of the Coptie being moored so far away from the notoni scene of .notion and the winning post. Moreover, the state of the tide in connection with the mooring seemed to make the course a matter of one moment on the port side of the steamer and the next on the starboard side, with a considerable amount of no sight of the course at allowing to the vessel's bows being mmediately in its centre, thus completely outting off the view of both start and finish. At all events. I have seldom seen at any regatta less knowledge of "what was going on." On the second day circumstances were so far more favour able that the "Ladies' Purse" and "Mombers' Cup " could be seen as being rowed for, but without strong bincoulars it was impossible to make out "which heat was which " and still more difficult to distinguish the individual rowers. "Is she looking? No, she is'nt' are matters of local history, but still, I think, much greater interest and enthusiasm might be engandered on board the Flagship were some Regatta Steward told off Grimble made a good deal of splash. All these essential details might be early made known as on the Race Course, and interest might be further stimulated by a little-"sweep" on the events. Regattas are proverbially not rapid affairs, but a great deal more interest might, I think, easily be induced. ns hope that next year's meeting will see this

Words are something, but nots are better, and it seems to me to be a poor return for the liberal support public and private, which the Catholic church has received here that, through its agency, the institutions of the colony, which were in existence before a Roman priest landed on the island, should be undermined. It is universally believed that the threatened abolition of the Colonial Chaplain's stipend is the work of the Romish Propaganda demanding concurrent endowment, a privilege to which no equal claim can be founded so long as

Ti ursday on the Friend of China's criticism of the Hon. F. B. Johnson's recent letter to the Chinese Recorder on the opinin traffic with much satisfaction. The position taken up by the organ of the Anti-Opium Society is one that can never be supported by any mercantile body, for the Society desires to interfere with the freedom of trade the law of supply and demand, and, for the sake of a sickly sentiment, to derange the finances of a great Empire. I maintain that it has not proved its case against opium, and though personally I am opposed to the habit of opiumsmoking. I regard the anti-opium agitators as a body of mischief-making persons whose zeal is misdirected and whose money is woefally misspplied. There can be no question, from the medical evidence on the habit and the testimony of scores of old smokers, that opium when smoked in moderation is harmless, and even when indulged in to excess is infinitely less baneful in ts effects than alcohol, and yet the humanitarian party use every effort to hold up their Government and fellow subjects to the execuation of Apropos of this self-sacrifice a "good story" is mankind as wholesale poisoners. on account of aged methers and young families dependent on them. They alleged they had no knowledge the things were piratically obtained and said had they known such was the case they would not have carried them for $500. His Locatship expressed his concurrence with the verdict of the jury, and pointed out various parts of the evidence which atrongly led to the belief that the prisoners were not only guilty of the charge, but they were actually concerned in the piracy themselves. The offence was specially for putting it down. For along time there had been but few cases owing to the fact that beavy sentences were passed upon conviction, and if severe sentences were not passed upon persons found guilty of such offences, it would only encourage other people to do tue same thing. THE HEALTH OF QUEEN VICTORIA. LONDON, 20th November. To-day's navices from Balmoral report that the Queen's health is improved, but the guarded manner in which the aunouncement is made is in marked contrast with the confident tone in which it has been several times claimed that she has ilmost entirely recovered, and the positive statements at first that the accident which has cost Her Majasty so many months of seclusion and suffering was a trivial occurrence. It is now stated officially that the Queen's power of walking has been partially restored, but that she is at a time, and that it is still impossible for her to walk up or down stairs.
